Bible History of Gold and Gold Mining.

THE BEST RAILROAD TIME EVER MADE.

Rarus and St. Helena Restored to the Turf—A Big Grain Failure at Detroit—A Disastrous Fire in Iowa, Etc., Etc.

[illegible]

NEW YORK, May 6.—Richard [illegible] lectured before the Washington Heights [illegible] this evening on the subject [illegible] with the reference made to that metal in the second chapter of Genesis, the first record of the creation, the declared spots of the earth where gold and traced its history through the later books of the bible and down to the present day. It is the only certain measure of value ... [illegible] ... In the book of Job a perfect description of mining is given ... that a [illegible] would readily recognize the drift, the tunnel and shaft. Solomon was successful as a gold miner, and the Greeks and Romans were fully alive to its value. In the middle ages, when search was made for a philosopher's stone which was to do away with the trouble of digging for gold, the quantity of coin actually decreased [illegible] of our money. When the world breathed free again Venice sprang into glorious commercial life, America was discovered and the mines of South America and Mexico added in half a century $1,000,000,000 to the circulation. When America began to develop croakers began to be alarmed and asked "What shall we do? There is not coin enough for the world's business." Just then, in the remote wilds of California, a little daughter of a millwright, while playing in a dam attached to Capt. Sutter's sawmill, came to her father and exclaimed, "What a pretty stone?" It was a nugget of gold. All know what followed. Australia was next in gold producing. Then came Nevada, Colorado and Arizona, until we have eight or ten states producing enough for all the world.

Kimball closed by explaining the terms of specie payments. It does not mean that for all I buy I pay specie, and for all I sell I get specie; there is not gold and silver enough in all the world to transact the world's business for a single day; but it means that in settling balances of commercial business throughout the world as well as between man and man, specie must be employed, and the nation which disregards this rule sinks inevitably into discredit and disgrace.

The Sun on the Chinese Treaties.

The Sun says editorially on the treaties with the Chinese: The government has acted liberally in the acceptance of the terms of this treaty and its confirmation by almost unanimous vote of the senate yesterday indicates the strength of the sentiment by which it is supported in this country. The treaty accords with the demands of the anti-Chinese party of California and provides for execution of those demands in a legal manner. It takes out of California politics a question which for years past has been full of disturbance.

The Times on the Chinese Treaties.

Only the Times had a leader on the ratification of the Chinese treaties. It says with characteristic disingenuousness that the democrats of the Pacific states, as if alarmed at prospective disappearance of the Chinese question from local politics, vociferously assailed the immigration treaties. The democratic senate before which the treaty was laid early in January last, declined to touch the matter, and it has now been ratified after long delay, with scarcely a dissenting voice. The delay, however, has served to dissipate all appreciable opposition to the treaty. Senator Farley, who represents the democratic objectors, if there be any, was especially clamorous for its speedy ratification.

Beecher on Chinese Immigration.

Henry Ward Beecher in a lecture last night, speaking of the antipathy to the Chinese, deprecated it, and earnestly said that the boasted institutions and policy of America were a sham if its people were unwilling to have the Chinese or any other people as citizens. Said Beecher: "We will assimilate all people who come to us. When a hen eats corn the hen does not turn into an ox, but the ox turns into a hen. So an unlimited ... [illegible] ... are the stomachs of the country, and he also has children are assimilated by our people."

The Civil Service Reform Society.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The civil service reform association tonight elected Geo. Wm. Curtis president, and B. H. Bristow, Geo. B. McClellan, John Jay and others vice presidents.

Personal.

Whitelaw Reid and wife sailed for Europe today.

The Endless Chain System in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, May 6.—Parties in this city have organized to secure the right to adopt the cable system such as is in use in San Francisco, for propelling cars on street railroads. One line of road to Walnut Hills has consented to introduce the system, and now waits authority of the city council to go ahead.

Heavy Failure.

DETROIT, May 6.—Jacob Berson & Co., one of the largest grain dealing firms connected with the Detroit board of trade, made an assignment this forenoon to Don M. Dickinson. The failure was a great surprise, and the board of trade suspended in consequence. Liabilities not stated, but are asserted to be heavy.

Disastrous Fire.

OTTUMWA, Ia., May 6.—Fire this morning destroyed the four story wholesale drug and book building of J. L. Taylor & Co., the First National Bank, Harper, Chamber & Co.'s wholesale hardware house and did considerable other damage. Taylor's loss, $117,000; the bank's, $10,000; Harper, Chambers & Co.'s, $25,000. The total loss will reach about $175,000; insured, [illegible]. All will build and resume business to-morrow.

Impertinent, Scandalous and Improper.

HARRISBURG, May 6.—Byerly, in the house this morning, presented a petition of the citizens of Lackawanna county, to impeach Gov. Hoyt and Attorney Palmer, for their action with reference to the judiciary of that county, namely: Appointing judges for too long a time, and for misdemeanors and abuses of power. This petition was denounced and a stormy scene ensued. It was voted impertinent, scandalous and improper, 80 to 52, the majority of nays being democrats.

Carl Schurz Denies.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Carl Schurz denies emphatically rumors connecting his name with the presidency of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. or with the Northern Pacific, or in fact with any other corporation. There is not a word of truth in any of these stories.

Railroad Arrangement.

DALLAS, Texas, May 6.—It is learned from trustworthy source that the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe and the Chicago, Texas and Mexican Central railroads have perfected arrangements for joint connection with the St. Louis and San Francisco at Dallas and Paris.

A Dastardly Act.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—Some malicious scoundrel cut the dyke this morning at Madison levee and the water is pouring to an opening 50 feet wide. Fifteen thousand acres will be overflown by reason of this dastardly act, all fine farming land. The river now is falling slowly and the worst it is hoped is over.

Base Ball.

CLEVELAND, May 6.—Clevelands, 7; Chicagos, 2.

Rumored Consolidated.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—Judge Portis, general solicitor of the Missouri Pacific railroad, in an interview with a reporter this afternoon regarding the reported purchase of the Iron Mountain railroad said that he had heard nothing of the purchase and knew nothing except what he had read in the newspapers. He did know, however, that the original plan was to consolidate the Iron Mountain and Texas & Pacific, but does not apprise his employes of changes in his plans.

French War Ship Lost.

NEW YORK, May 6.—A shipwrecked mariner, Anti Pabo, says that he shipped from Batock, March 1st, a French port of African coast, bound for the Mediterranean. The vessel was the French war ship La Marine and was commanded by Captain Blanco. I was servant to the captain. When a few days out we encountered a hurricane. The vessel was well manned and had fifty soldiers on board besides officers. The storm lasted over a week and we sprung a leak. Some of the crew were killed by falling masts and some were washed overboard. I stayed with the captain, who with fourteen took to a raft. We left the ship at night, it was fast going to pieces and most of the men were drowned. When we left the vessel we had nothing to eat and drifted at the mercy of the waves for two weeks. Two of the party died on the raft of starvation. We were picked up by a ship bound for New Orleans. I was afterwards put on a steamer and brought to this city. My captain is now in New Orleans. I am a Free Mason.

Drowned.

ST. PAUL, May 6.—In crossing the Chippewa river at Benson a skiff containing five people capsized and Mrs. [illegible] and her three-year-old son were drowned. Their bodies were recovered to-day.

A Challenge.

DENVER, May 6.—Miss Minnie Pinnes, of Greeley, Colorado, has published a card accepting the challenge of Miss M. B. Williams, of England, to a twenty mile race for $500 a side.

A Great Industry.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—The production of all kinds of rails in the United States during 1880 far surpasses any previous year, reaching 1,461,000 net tons, ... [illegible] ... over 1879.

On Time again.

[illegible] May 6.—A C. R. I. & P. train arrived on time to-day for the first time since the flood. Other roads are beginning to send out trains, and communication will soon be restored on all sides.

One cold is sometimes contracted on top of another, the accompanying cough becoming settled and confirmed, and the lungs so strained and racked that the production of tubercles frequently follows. Many existing cases of pulmonary disease may be thus accounted for, and yet how many others are now carelessly allowing themselves to drift through the preliminary symptoms, controlled by the fatal policy of allowing a cold to take care of itself! On the first intimation of a cough or cold, or any throat or chest trouble, resort promptly to Dr. Jayne's Expectorant, a safe curative of long established reputation, and you may avoid the consequences of such dangerous neglect.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Rudolphe and Stephanie.

VIENNA, May 6.—The meeting of [illegible] the Princess Stephanie [illegible] an enthusiastic crowd.

[illegible], May 6.—There was a gala [illegible] at the railway station at Salzburg [illegible] the arrival of the [illegible] Princess Stephanie and Prince Rudolphe. The town was [illegible] decorated with flags and at night with illuminations. [illegible] The town was brilliantly illuminated [illegible] procession of students [illegible] the palace, carrying with torches [illegible] the monogram of Rudolph and Stephanie [illegible] grand display of fireworks. The royal party drove through town to witness the illumination. Prince Rudolph returned to Vienna last night.

VIENNA, May 6.—Already, 80,000 strangers have arrived to be present at the marriage of Rudolph and Stephanie, at Salzburg. The royal party drove to the railway station through a dense and enthusiastic crowd of people. The train started amid strains of the Belgian national anthem and cheers of the people. The party arrived at Vienna this afternoon.

Another Account of the Royal Reception.

VIENNA, May 6.—Prince Rudolphe, on his arrival here to-day, was cordially received by a deputation of 18. His former tutors. The arrival at Schonbrunn of a train bearing the queen of the Belgians and the Princess Stephanie, was awaited by Emperor Prince Rudolphe, wearing Belgian orders of Knighthood and the stadtholder of Vienna. The royal train, wreathed with flowers, entered the station which was richly decorated, shortly after 4 o'clock, to the strains of the Belgian national anthem. Prince Rudolphe affectionately embraced Princess Stephanie and presented her to the emperor who kissed her on the forehead. When the greetings of the royal party were concluded, the burgomaster presented Princess Stephanie with a beautiful bouquet of white roses and hawthorne. The party then entered carriages, being received with deafening cheers of the populace, when they appeared at the door of the station. The first carriage contained the emperor and King of the Belgians, the second, the queen of the Belgians, Princess Stephanie and Prince Rudolphe, and the third, the Princess Celementine and her governess. The carriages proceeded slowly down the street on which the station was situated to Fest Platz, where representatives of six suburbs and Vienna, presented homage to the royal party, then through Schonbrunnet to the castle. The route of procession was lined with troops and the crowds of people numbered thousands who greeted the party, especially Princess Stephanie, with loudest and heartiest acclamations. The party on their arrival were affectionately welcomed by the empress in the great gallery of the castle. Burgomasters will to-morrow pay a visit to the king of the Belgians and present him with a gold medal struck in commemoration of the marriage.

Wagner's New Opera.

BERLIN, May 6.—Wagner's Nebelungen Trilogy was begun at the Victoria theatre last evening. There was an immense crowd of spectators, and great enthusiasm. The composer, Wagner, was present. At the conclusion of the performance he was boisterously cheered, when he descended to the stage and returned thanks for the reception given his work.

The New Cable.

LONDON, May 6.—The recent flurry and alarm among cable companies here is fully explained today by completion of preparations for laying new American cables from England to Nova Scotia. All nonsense published here and in New York about alleged arrangements for checking American competition with the British cable monopoly is explained today by an announcement that the cable steamship Faraday is under orders to sail today or tomorrow from the Thames to begin the work of laying a new Atlantic cable constructed by the house of Siemens Brothers for Mr. Jay Gould and the American Cable Company. The Faraday has been taking her cables [illegible] and for the last week at Woolwich. One thousand two hundred miles of new cable are now finished and 1500 miles will be finished by the middle of this month. These cables are the best ever yet made, their peculiar feature, perfected by the house of Siemens Brothers, being a new style of [illegible] ... [illegible]

French Affairs.

PARIS, May 6.—The [illegible] committee of the chamber of deputies rejected a radical amendment in favor of suppression of the French embassy at the Vatican.

Gambetta, who was present at a banquet to celebrate the abolition of slavery proposed a toast "To all French subjects without distinction of race or color." An address from an English committee for abolition of slavery was read, proposing the formation of a Franco-English committee for abolition of slavery in Egypt on a similar plan to that controlling Egyptian finances.

The Monetary Conference.

The second plenary sitting of the monetary conference was held today. President, Lord Rust [illegible] Alexander T. Galt were present. Vrolik was appointed vice-president. A series of questions submitted by Vrolik and reported by the committee were unanimously adopted for discussion. Delegates for Germany, Austria, England, India, Canada, Greece, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland explained the views of their respective governments. It is understood that their statements contained reservations of various degrees of importance. Cernuschi opening a general discussion dwelt upon the necessity of coming to an understanding with a delegate for Germany, whose statement had altered the position of affairs. The speech of the German delegate was ordered printed and distributed among the members of the conference. Discussion will be resumed Saturday.

The Suez Canal and the Panama Route.

A recent issue of the Economist Francaise expresses surprise at a statement which is attracting attention in Europe, that the Panama canal will divert two millions of tons of traffic per annum from the Suez canal. It proceeds to show that four-fifths of the Suez traffic consists of navigation between Europe, the Dead sea, Persian gulf, East India, Malay peninsula, and the straits' settlements. The Panama canal obviously cannot divert this traffic. The other fifth consists of traffic to China, Japan and Australia. Hongkong, Canton and Shanghai are nearer to Europe by the Suez than by the Panama route. As for Australian traffic, 4 or 5 vessels per month are all the share that the Suez canal at present gets. Moreover, finally the Suez dues will be only 9 francs per ton, gross tonnage, while the Panama dues will be 12 francs 50 centimes or even 15 francs. The writer estimates that the Suez canal will not at the most lose more than 7 or 8 per cent of the total traffic when the Panama canal is opened.

Trouble between Parnell and his Followers.

LONDON, May 6.—It is said that the rupture in the Parnellite camp is complete. The Times says: Richard Lalor seconded Parnell's resolution. The minority against the resolution were Daly, O'Shaughnessy, Sullivan, McCoan, Blake, O'Sullivan, O'Donoghue, Smithwick, Marum, McCarthy, John O'Connor Power and MacFarlane. White, Richard Power, O'Shea and Nolan abstained from voting.

English Items.

LONDON, May 6.—It is stated that Bradlaugh is about to issue an appeal to the people, pointing out the manner in which the house of commons is treating him and asserting that the conservatives, under cover of his case, jeopardize the land bill and impede the business of the country.

The British troop ship Malabar from Bombay, is now full five days between Malta and Gibraltar. She is said to be broken down.

Gladstone is sick today and absent from the commons.

Memorial to Beaconsfield.

A fund of £5,000 is being raised to decorate Hughenden church as a memorial to Beaconsfield.

Six Days without Food.

The ship Governor Langdon picked up on March 31st, 30 miles off Florida, a boat containing a son of a general in the U. S. army, six days without food, having been blown to sea in a small open boat.

Another Explosion.

LONDON, May 6.—A parcel of powder was exploded under the walls of the barracks at Chester last night; damage trifling. It is believed the perpetrators are militiamen who have been punished.

Carlyle's Reminiscences.

LONDON, May 6.—Froude writes to the Times that in 1871 Carlyle gave him the manuscript of his reminiscences, with instructions attached thereto. Froude expressed the opinion that a greater part of the reminiscences should be published as it was. Carlyle replied that he left the matter to Froude. He accepted the trust only out of regard for Carlyle, and two years ago surrendered it to Carlyle's niece. He should be very loth to give further explanation.

Irish Affairs.

DUBLIN, May 6.—Brennan, secretary of the land league, has started for London. He will return Sunday.

Fillibustering in the Commons.

LONDON, May 6.—Parnellites tonight in a meeting of 35, by a vote of 17 to 2 adopted a resolution to abstain from voting on the second reading of the land bill and to leave the house in a body when division is called. It is said that Parnell offered the resolution and that A. M. Sullivan seconded it.

No More Public Executions in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 5.—The government has definitely decided to discontinue public executions.

Nihilist Movements.

LONDON, May 6.—It is said that the arrest of Grand Duke Constantine is likely to be followed by a attempt [illegible] of the Russian fleet, who are said to have an understanding with a number of [illegible] at Odessa. A nihilist appeal to the Russian army has been widely circulated in St. Petersburg. In this document the autocrat ... [illegible] ... ends by calling on the army to rise and strike down tyrants.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—George A. Sheridan has expressed a determination to tender his resignation as recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia.

Dawes Denies.

Senator Dawes has telegraphed the following to a New England newspaper:

"Please say tomorrow that all statements that I or any committee of which I am one have advised the president to withdraw the nomination of Robertson, or have recommended to him or to the caucus that action on the nomination be postponed until another session, are false. The fabrications of facts at this end of the wire and those at the other ends who use the fabrications as true, beat themselves out."

Confirmations.

The following were among the confirmations by the senate today: Nathan W. Spaulding, United States assistant treasurer at San Francisco; Bradley J. Watson, naval officer of customs at San Francisco; John H. Merriman, collector for the district of Oregon; Chancellor Hartson, collector of internal revenue for the first California district; Roswell G. Wheeler, Indian agent for Pima and Maricopa agency, Arizona; at Helena, Montana, Wm. H. Llewellyn, Indian agent, Mescalero agency, New Mexico; John H Sullivan, Indian agent at Maquis, Pueblo agency, Arizona; Wm. Letcher, register of land office at Mitchell, Dakota; Otis Perrin, receiver of public money at Stockton; Solomon Cooper, receiver of public money at Humboldt; James C. Fullerton, receiver of public money at Roseburg, Oregon. And the following postmasters: Wm. Sharkey, at Oroville, Cal.; John P. Clum, Tombstone, Arizona; Jas. France, Rawlins, Wyoming; Robert E. Fisk, Helena, Montana.

California Confirmations.

The confirmation of Messrs. Spaulding, Watson and [illegible] as assistant treasurer, naval officer and internal revenue collector at San Francisco were all effected yesterday by unanimous consent, and their commissions will be prepared for them.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

No Serious Work being done at Panama by DeLesseps' Men.

NEW YORK, May 6.—A Washington special says: How is work on deLesseps' canal advancing? asked a reporter of John M. Wilson, U. S. consul at Panama, who has lately arrived. A.—It is making very little progress.

Q.—How many men are employed—what are they doing? A.—There are about 40 Frenchmen down there, about half of whom appear to be running lines in various directions, while the other half are commissaries and others. There are besides about a hundred Jamaica negroes engaged in cutting brush. W...e has returned to France.

Q. Then nothing like serious work has yet been attempted? A.—None whatever. Six stations have been established on the proposed line across the isthmus, but no houses have been built, and the men are living in tents. The rainy season has begun and the men will soon be driven out of their tents by storms. The truth is it does not look as though deLesseps ever intends to dig a canal there. DeLesseps is a great diplomat, but a poor financier, and if he really intends in good faith to build the canal, I think he will fail.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Murder at Willows.

WILLOWS, May 6.—Harry J. Ketcham shot Billy Mooney here last night. An old grudge was the cause. Mooney reached the Willows only a few hours before the shooting, having walked hither from Williams. Report says that Mooney was lying in wait to kill Ketcham and the latter killed Mooney in self-defense.

Imprisoned for Life.

SAN ANTONIO, May 6.—Robert Ballentyne, a federal soldier who murdered a comrade at Fort Clark has been sentenced to ninety-nine years in the penitentiary.

Drowned.

BENICIA, May 6.—Last evening John Lucy an employee on a wharf at Port Costa, was drowned by falling from a sail boat.

NEVADA.

Albion Wins.

EUREKA, May 6.—In the Richmond-Albion case Judge Rising's decision was read this morning. It decides all material points in favor of the Albion, but continues the injunctions in force against both companies covering all the ground west of the Tip Top end line. The judge says that he has no right to overthrow the St. George patent in collateral proceeding, but thinks it ought to be set aside when ever the case shall be tried on its merits.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Items for Victoria.

VICTORIA, May 6.—Five cent and one cent pieces will come into general circulation here after the 1st of July next and will be given in change at the customs houses and postoffices throughout the province. For example, when a person presents one dollar in payment of a custom charge of 99 cents the odd cent will be handed him, and so on through the whole decimal scale. Ten cents is the smallest coin now in circulation here.

A late arrival in our city, and who shortly after took his departure, managed to pass off to a Chinaman one of the confederate notes for $10 to pay 50 cents for washing, the poor deluded John giving him $9 50.

The bark Herbert Black has discharged her Chinese cargo and will sail for Portland, for which port Stahlschmidt & Ward have chartered her to load wheat for U. K. at £4 6s.

The ship Star of Brunswick arrived in the royal roads yesterday morning, 96 days from Rio Janeiro in ballast. She left Rio on the 27th of January, and was 35 days getting around Cape Horn; weather excessively bad. She proceeds to Moodyville, Burrard Inlet, to load lumber for Valparaiso.

The ship [illegible] has not settled any deeper in the mud since Monday last. The weather has been very unfavorable for removal of sails, etc., it being constantly wet. The agent of the ship's underwriters [illegible] by the Hylton Castle due here to-morrow or Sunday.

THE POLITICAL CAULDRON

Boiling and Bubbling Over at the National Capital.

THE PRESIDENT FIRM AND CONKLING DEFIANT

Seven Democrats Counted on to Support the New York Boss—Robertson Almost Certain of Confirmation by a Two-Thirds Vote, etc., etc.

[illegible]

WASHINGTON, May 6.—A reporter ... [illegible] ... It is reported that the nominations were withdrawn in order to permit taking [illegible] ... not appointed at his request. A reporter of the Western Associated Press ... the administration ... The reply was that such a report was not true. ... [illegible] ... said that the president's message was no peace offering ... that the republican party of New York as represented by Conkling would condemn him if he did not resent Robertson's appointment ... When the message was read in the senate Conkling was reading a paper and did not look up. He knew beforehand what it was. His friends who have talked with him tonight say that he is not dismayed and that he is confident that the stalwarts will rally closer than ever. ... [illegible]

The President is Firm.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Several republicans ... [illegible] ... had been to see the president ... [illegible] ... that Robertson will be confirmed within a week.

The Situation.

The president's withdrawal of the Conkling New York nominations and the past, present and prospective phases of the whole complication in which they figure are still the absorbing subjects of gossip and comment in all political circles of the capital, and the excitement of yesterday, though of course somewhat abated has not very perceptibly subsided. Several republican senators called upon the president again this morning and urged him to withdraw Robertson's name as the best and quickest means of harmonizing the party, arguing that as the other New York nominations had been withdrawn, he could now remove the cause of irritation by making an entirely new deal with the New York patronage, which would satisfy both wings of the party. The president listened to their argument with calmness, but adhered firmly to his former declaration that he would not now consent to anything of the sort. He expressed himself as sincerely desirous of party harmony, but thought that he was asking altogether too much of him under all the circumstances to withdraw Judge Robertson's nomination. It is now stated on good authority that the same proposition for a withdrawal of Robertson and a readjustment of all New York nominations was made to him yesterday by Senator Platt, and Vice President Arthur prior to his sending his message to the senate. It is also given out that Senator Conkling has acknowledged the receipt of the president's ultimatum and does not intend in any degree receding from his position. ... [illegible] ... the general belief is that Robertson will certainly be confirmed during the special session. ... [illegible]

More of the Fight.

[illegible]

War to the Knife.

The president's withdrawal of all the appointments ... [illegible] ... It is also understood to be intended as an explicit intimation to the republicans of the senate that the president is not willing to have Robertson's nomination left at final adjournment without action. The withdrawal was doubtless precipitated by the conformation of one of Conkling's friends yesterday as postmaster at Albany, which made it manifest to Garfield that unless he took some such summary action all of the Conkling nominees would shortly be confirmed and then be found leaving their associates and their patronage against the president and Robertson, whereas by suspending them he still keeps control of the entire New York patronage in his own hands.

The Times on Garfield's "Coup."

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Times says editorially: In the contest between Garfield and Conkling, in which both shall use the same or like weapons, and seek similar ends in which both shall in short act the part of politicians of the baser sort the country will take very little interest. Indeed, it will only feel that the highest functions of the government in the White House and in the senate are perverted to a very base and discreditable use.

The Times says: The withdrawal by the president of the New York nominations, except that of Judge Robertson, would be an excellent act if he had found some good reason for it other than that the gentlemen named were made for their places. To be sure, it would not be calculated to increase the people's confidence in the president's certainty of judgment or his caution in reaching a decision, but it would unquestionably add to his reputation for courage and honesty. Frank confession of a mistake which there is yet time to retract, disarms criticism, but we are not permitted to accept this explanation of Garfield's act, and it is difficult to see where we shall find any other consistent with his dignity, his independence or his fidelity to the duties of his high position.

From the Sun.

The Sun says against the president as follows: This one act reduces the rank and position of president of the United States, represented by James A. Garfield, to that of a Chatham street dealer in old clothes and a huckster.

From the Tribune.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Tribune's Washington special says: When the president's message withdrawing the New York nominations reached the senate that body was in executive session engaged in discussion of one of the treaties with China. Conkling was occupied with the perusal of a letter when the message was read by the clerk, and it is said that the New York senator apparently paid no heed to the reading of the short communication which meant so much to him. Significant smiles were exchanged among the democratic senators, "administration senators" appeared to be contented and Conkling's supporters looked gloomy. Everybody appeared to be taken by surprise. The message has been the one topic of discussion among politicians in Washington since yesterday. Conkling's friends are exceedingly angry and declare that an open breach between him and the administration is inevitable. They seek to create the impression that Conkling is an abused and persecuted man.

The Tribune says: We do not understand that the withdrawal of the names of Woodford, Tenny, Payne, McDougall and Tyler means any intention on the part of the administration to proscribe any republican element or to encourage any form of factional strife. It would seem to be simply only this, that while Conkling has declared open hostility against the administration and boasts that he will effect the rejection of Robertson's nomination, the president thinks it desirable that the result of this attack should be made known before other New York places are filled. ... [illegible] ... which is wholly a Conkling creation.

Opinions of the Chicago Press.

CHICAGO, May 6.—Respecting the president's conduct yesterday the Inter-Ocean editorially considers it a necessary piece of spiteful... which lowers the presidential dignity. The Times and Tribune consider that it properly asserts that dignity, and is in the highest degree creditable as a bold and original method of commanding respect from every faction, and rebuking the assumptions of Conkling and his crowd of admirers and followers. It seems to be the general opinion that it will be potent in securing prompt and favorable action on most of the appointments of the president, which he has a right to expect.

Gorham Sits Astride the Fence.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Gorham's Washington Republican today says: The remarkable action of the president yesterday in withdrawing all New York nominations, except that of the collector of customs at New York, is either the first step forward to a recast of all appointments from that state, or it is an [illegible]

Carlyle's Sneers.

[From the London Athenæum.]

A wholesome feeling of anger and irritation cannot but be the result of such ungenerous remarks as were fired upon everybody. And the remarkable thing is that the greater the genius the more he or she despised or else hated. This is sad, but true. We will give but two instances out of many. To the lover of English poetry and English humor, the two most interesting figures in the London of 1830 are perhaps the author of "Christabel" and the author of the "Elia" essays. In the best poetry of the one and the humor of the other there is that quality of "absoluteness" which, in the eyes of the true critic, sets them at a place apart from their contemporaries; and if Coleridge did produce some poetry that was unworthy of him, assuredly the quality of Lamb's humor was always above ... Carlyle's scorn of these two gifted men knows no bounds.

CHICAGO, May 6.—The board of review of the National Trotting Association tonight reinstated Rarus, who was expelled from the association tracks for failing to appear according to engagement at the meeting of the Hartford track. The reason for failure was that he changed hands after the engagement was made, having been purchased by Wm. H. Vanderbilt. It is probable that Rarus will appear again this year on the turf in public. The board also decided that the horse St. Helena, formerly owned by A. S. Stokes, and now the property of Cornelius J. Vanderbilt of Hartford, Conn., who was suspended in California for non-payment of a fine incurred by technical violation of rules, should be reinstated on payment of the fine.

WRINKLED FACES.

It is a painful sight to see young ladies in their teens with wrinkled and prematurely old faces; nevertheless it is quite common, and to any one who observes the tendency of the time the reason is very apparent. Owing to flaming advertisements and bogus certificates, in which are used the names of eminent physicians and chemists, the unsuspecting and credulous have been induced to use some of the so-called liquid beautifiers, all of which are known to be positively injurious and if used for any length of time will destroy the complexion, so that it will become almost impossible to restore it. SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 7, 1881

A CRUSHING EMBARGO.

At this [illegible] the value of one bushel of wheat must be given to carry [illegible] another bushel from Portland or San Francisco to the European market. The whole product of our chief industry is halved at a single stroke. Ocean freights, instead of being ninety to ninety-five shillings per ton, should not be more than one-half that figure. We are at the mercy of foreign ship-owners, who as men always will when they can, press their advantage to the utmost. Every advance in the foreign wheat market, however slight, has been followed by a corresponding advance in freights. Ships are few, and the intention is to keep up a rate that will barely permit exportation. Yet we have no right to complain of the foreign ship-owner. He is doing just what our national policy permits him to do. He is making the most of opportunities, as any other man would, which we have placed in his hands.

Wooden vessels can no longer be built with profit. Iron has taken the place of wood. The iron interest of one or two of our states is the centre of our system of "protection." Supersedure of wooden vessels by iron ones, operating in conjunction with our navigation laws and the protective system, has reduced us to our present extremity. Cause and effect were never more manifest than here. So plain is it that he who runs may read how and why it is that our producers are forced to give one bushel of wheat to get another bushel carried to market. Observe that it is not the rate paid by the producer from his farm to Portland or to San Francisco that oppresses him. That is a trifle in comparison with the ocean freights. Our national policy permits, nay invites, the ship-owner to confiscate half the crop and all profits of it; and defenders of that policy want to persuade our producers that it is a good thing.

We continue to this day the mediæval policy adopted by our government nearly a century ago—a policy which every other nation save Spain long ago discarded—of excluding foreign built ships from registration under our flag. Content now to run the race of maritime decrepitude with Spain, we have abandoned the ambition of competing with more vigorous nations, and persist in this absurd and fatal prohibition introduced in our navigation laws of 1789. The present condition of ship building and ship-owning in this country, the scarcity of tonnage to transact our business, and the virtually prohibitory rates demanded for ocean transport, of which we have so signal a proof in the necessity of giving one bushel of wheat to get another bushel carried to market, are circumstances which furnish the best practical commentary not only on our navigation laws, but on the policy of protection in general. The system not only oppresses but crushes us. It is here reduced to its lowest terms. Our navigation laws prohibit the buying of foreign ships for the sole purpose of encouraging the building of domestic ships. But notwithstanding their absolute monopoly under this law, such are the duties levied for protection of the materials that go into ship-building, and so high are the taxes of one kind or another upon the business and the property embarked in it, that our ship-builders cannot build ships at a profit. It is illegal to buy them, and next to impossible to build them; and consequently our merchant marine has dwindled to nothing. We have not ships to carry away one-tenth part of our products, and foreign ship-owners, having absolute control of transportation, exact of us what they choose. Our commerce is embarrassed by our own national folly, and the heaviest weight of this oppression falls upon those who are situated as we are on the Pacific slope, who have no means of obtaining any compensation, as others may, out of the robberies perpetrated through an oppressive system. The foreign ship-owner charges what he likes for carrying away our products, and the eastern manufacturer, "protected" at all points, exacts high prices for the goods we must buy. We feel the weight and burden of hard times. Is it possible there can be a single producer on the Pacific slope who is unable to see in this situation the main cause of it?

In electing members of congress the Pacific states ought to make this the leading issue. There is nothing that so greatly affects the material interests of this people. No phase of the railroad question is of any importance compared with it. No corporate monopoly sits, or ever can sit, so like an incubus upon them. We ought to send up a united demand for repeal of the navigation laws. Give us free ships. That should be the issue. Abolish the laws which forbid the admission of foreign-built ships to American registration. Then, if as a nation we are still so short sighted as to maintain an absurd system in the name of "protection" which prevents us from building ships, we can at least buy them from those who have wisdom to build, sail or sell them. Here is a people on this side of the continent who produce two or three million tons of wheat a year and want a market for it. But their government interposes, and under heavy penalties forbids them to buy ships to send away to market the fruits of their own labor. It is an abominable policy. Shall we have men in congress who will raise a voice against it?

THE FIGHT WITH BOSSISM.

President Garfield now begins to correct his mistakes. When he took his office he held out an olive branch to arrogant bossism. He wanted no trouble with the bosses or sub-bosses. So he took extraordinary pains to be gracious to the senator from New York, the chief of them all. For a time he actually rained favors on the head of Lord Roscoe. The chief boss and his henchmen were supremely happy. They had got rid of the contumacious Hayes, who had entertained an eccentric notion that he was president and not Mr. Conkling, and they rejoiced with exceeding great joy over the supposed restoration of boss rule as they saw President Garfield bringing the old symbols of earth and water and laying them at the feet of Mr. Conkling in token of his submission to the lord of New York patronage. This pleased the great man, and in recognition of President Garfield's homage he graciously condescended to pay a visit to the White House, a thing he had scorned to do while President Hayes occupied it. Logan also and Cameron, sub-bosses, were "conciliated" as the chief had been, and all who follow the game of plunder crowed lustily over the restoration of boss rule. But suddenly all was changed. Several nominations, conspicuous among which was that of Robertson for collector of the port of New York, were sent in without previous consultation with the bosses. The effect produced was a mixture of amazement, consternation and wrath. That the president should have the temerity to nominate a collector at New York, or presume to fill any New York office without first consulting the state boss, obtaining his permission, or awaiting his recommendation, was a piece of insolent presumption meriting the severest punishment. Mr. Conkling has not, in fact, favored the white house with his presence since, but finding that President Garfield was enduring his absence as comfortably as President Hayes had done before him, the [illegible] boss next declared his purpose to bring his revolted vassal, the president, to submission by open attack and punishment [illegible]. He would get all his own [illegible] confirmed, but would defeat those whom the president had presumed to nominate without his suggestion or permission, and would show [illegible] how rebellion against sovereignty [illegible] should be checked and punished.

The plan appeared to be working [illegible]. After long delay the senate had begun to hold executive sessions, and nominations were being confirmed. Conkling had got his postmaster for Albany through, and looked with serene satisfaction and quiet triumph for speedy confirmation of [illegible] while he held back those nominations which had been sent in without his permission. But suddenly President Garfield met this by withdrawal of all the Conkling nominations, at the same time refusing to withdraw the representative of the wing of republicans opposed to the Conkling machine, who had been nominated for the most important office in New York! This was a thunder stroke which demolished all the calculations of the stalwart ringsters and spoilsmen. They had been too hasty in mistaking the gracious amenities of the master for the obsequious deference of the servant. The president is correcting his mistakes. It has taken time for him to discover and fully learn the spirit and purpose of those who demand the restoration of the degrading system which treats the public offices as perquisites of senators and representatives, to be parcelled out among their personal friends and heelers. Or perhaps he thought it would be better to take a course which would unmask the system to the country by exposure of its arrogance. In either case his present attempt will be recognized as a proper stand for a correct principle. It is notice to the country that he does not intend to abdicate his office at the command of senatorial bosses, and the country will support him in that purpose. The administration must now crush bossism, or be crushed by it. Fortunately the matter has come to a clear and decisive issue, and there is no avoiding it now. Conkling has appealed on an issue in which he will be overthrown.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The San Francisco Bulletin says: "The OREGONIAN is disposed to challenge the future commercial supremacy of San Francisco." A mistake; the Bulletin did not read with its usual discrimination. THE OREGONIAN said that while San Francisco was and would remain for many years, if not for all the future, the chief commercial city of the Pacific Coast, it would not much longer maintain the overwhelming importance it has hitherto possessed. For thirty years there has been no other city on the Pacific slope. No business has been done except through San Francisco. Even yet no one can come or go without passing through that city. All routes of commerce for the coast, all connections with the east across the continent and with the west across the ocean, focalize there. But in a few years more this will be a good deal changed. Very soon there will be other railways across the continent. Other lines across the ocean, and other connections with all parts of the world, will be established. San Francisco will not decline, but she will no longer monopolize all, as she has hitherto done. That is to say, her importance will not be, relatively, so great as it has been. The vast country north of her and the vast country south of her with their towns and small cities, which hitherto have been able to do business only with San Francisco, or through San Francisco, will, within a few years, be doing no small part of their business through more direct channels, both by land and sea. San Francisco can buy nothing that we want to sell. So soon as we can go as well as she to the original markets, she can sell us nothing that we want to buy. In this we are not "challenging the commercial supremacy of San Francisco," for that city, though her relative importance will be gradually lost, will yet grow and develop, retaining her position as the largest and most important city on the Pacific coast. As yet she is the only city. Hitherto there has been very little business on this side of the continent which has not been transacted through San Francisco. It is this overwhelming pre-eminence [illegible] that cannot always be maintained.

The question has not yet arisen officially how far our adopted fellow-citizens are to be permitted to go in their efforts to secure the liberation of Ireland from British rule. This is not generally dangerous, but it is just possible that there may be too much talk of a certain sort. For instance, Mr. O'Donovan Rossa's notion is that Mr. Gladstone should be put out of the way of oppressing Ireland further by means of bomb or bullet, and another impassioned orator tells his fellow leaguers assembled in public meeting that the only remedy against the oppressive acts of landlordism is "to shoot the landlords." Nor does the land league in this country confine itself to incendiary speeches against English statesmen and Irish landlords, but at a meeting held in New York recently it was resolved that military companies should be formed of volunteers for Ireland. All this would seem rather to exceed the bounds of propriety. But doubtless our Irish brethren were indulging the luxury of talking freely because they knew they were in a place where it was safe to do so. Probably in point of fact very few even of those who heard and applauded these sentiments would have any sympathy at all with cold blooded murder, whether the victim were Mr. Gladstone, who is evidently trying to help the Irish peasants, or a landlord, who is not trying to help them. Nor would they send companies of volunteers to Ireland if they could.

Florida has become a great resort for people from the northern states. It is now said that while that state has the credit of being a proper place for resort for invalids, its climate appears to have any other than a wholesome effect upon those who are hale and hearty. A number of cases are cited in which healthy persons, after a sojourn in the flowery state for a month or two, have returned to the north with their systems filled with malarial influence which develops itself almost as soon as they arrive at home.

There is little doubt that most of the democratic senators will aid President Garfield in his efforts to break down the insolence of bossism. A majority of the republican senators will also aid in the same good cause. The old senatorial ring of the Grant dynasty, or what is left of it, will rally around Conkling; but it will be defeated and extinguished. It has invited a war of aggression and extermination.

The man with a backbone is ascertained to be James A. Garfield of Ohio. Roscoe now feels that in challenging him for a wrestle he has been made a victim of misplaced confidence.

Mr. Conkling would like somebody to tell him whether he is a vassal or a boss. Clearly he doesn't know himself.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY . 1881

A CRUSHING EMBARGO.

At this moment the value of one bushel of wheat must be given to shipowners to induce them to carry another bushel from Portland or San Francisco to the European market. The whole product of our chief industry is halved at a single stroke. Ocean freights, instead of being ninety to ninety-five shillings per ton, should not be more than one-half that figure. We are at the mercy of foreign ship-owners, who as men always will when they can, press their advantage to the utmost. Every advance in the foreign wheat market, however slight, has been followed by a corresponding advance in freights. Ships are few, and the intention is to keep up a rate that will barely permit exportation. Yet we have no right to complain of the foreign ship-owner. He is doing just what our national policy permits him to do. He is making the most of opportunities, as any other man would, which we have placed in his hands.

Wooden vessels can no longer be built with profit. Iron has taken the place of wood. The iron interest of one or two or of our states is the centre of our system of "protection." Supersedure of wooden vessels by iron ones, operating in conjunction with our navigation laws and "protective" system, has reduced us to our present extremity. Cause and effect were never more manifest than here. So plain is it that he who runs may read how and why it is that our producers are forced to give one bushel of wheat to get another bushel carried to market. Observe that it is not the rate paid by the producer from his farm to Portland or to San Francisco that oppresses him. That is a trifle in comparison with the ocean freights. Our national policy permits, nay invites, the ship-owner to confiscate half the crop and all profits of it; and defenders of that policy want to persuade our producers that it is a good thing.

We continue to this day the mediæval policy adopted by our government nearly a century ago—a policy which every other nation save Spain long ago discarded—of excluding foreign built ships from registration under our flag. Content now to run the race of maritime decrepitude with Spain, we have abandoned the ambition of competing with more vigorous nations, and persist in this absurd and fatal prohibition introduced in our navigation laws of 1789. The present condition of ship building and ship-owning in this country, the scarcity of tonnage to transact our business, and the virtually prohibitory rates demanded for ocean transport, of which we have so signal a proof in the necessity of giving one bushel of wheat to get another bushel carried to market, are circumstances which furnish the best practical commentary not only on our navigation laws, but on the policy of protection in general. The system not only oppresses but crushes us. It is here reduced to its lowest terms. Our navigation laws prohibit the buying of foreign ships for the sole purpose of encouraging the building of domestic ships. But notwithstanding their absolute monopoly under this law, such are the duties levied for protection of the materials that go into ship-building, and so high are the taxes of one kind or another upon the business and the property embarked in it, that our ship-builders cannot build ships at a profit. It is illegal to buy them and next to impossible to build them; and consequently our merchant marine has dwindled to nothing. We have not ships to carry away one-tenth part of our products, and foreign ship-owners, having absolute control of transportation, exact of us what they choose. Our commerce is embargoed by our own national folly, and the heaviest weight of this oppression falls upon those who are situated as we are on the Pacific slope, who have no means of obtaining any compensation, as others may, out of the robberies perpetrated through an oppressive system. The foreign ship-owner charges what he likes for carrying away our products, and the eastern manufacturer, "protected" at all points, exacts high prices for the goods we must buy. We feel the weight of a burden of hard times. Is it possible there can be a single producer on the Pacific slope who is unable to see in this situation the main cause of it?

In electing members of congress the Pacific states ought to make this the leading issue. There is nothing that so greatly affects the material interests of this people. No phase of the railroad question is of any importance compared with it. No corporate monopoly sits, or ever can sit, so like an incubus upon them. We ought to send up a united demand for repeal of the navigation laws. Give us free ships. That should be the issue. Abolish the laws which forbid the admission of foreign-built ships to American registration. Then, if as a nation we are still so short sighted as to maintain an absurd system in the name of "protection" which prevents us from building ships, we can at least buy them from those who have wisdom to build, sail or sell them. Here is a people on this side of the continent who produce two or three million tons of wheat a year and want a market for it. But their government interposes, and under heavy penalties forbids them to buy ships to send away to market the fruits of their own labor. It is an abominable policy. Shall we have men in congress who will raise a voice against it?

THE FIGHT WITH BOSSISM.

President Garfield now begins to correct his mistakes. When he took his office he held out an olive branch to arrogant bossism. He wanted no trouble with the bosses or sub-bosses. So he took extraordinary pains to be gracious to the senator from New York, the chief of them all. For a time he actually rained favors on the head of Lord Roscoe. The chief boss and his henchmen were supremely happy. They had got rid of the contumacious Hayes, who had entertained an eccentric notion that he was president and not Mr. Conkling, and they rejoiced with exceeding great joy over the supposed restoration of boss rule as they saw President Garfield bringing the old symbols of earth and water and laying them at the feet of Mr. Conkling in token of his submission to the lord of New York patronage. This pleased the great man, and in recognition of President Garfield's homage he graciously condescended to pay a visit to the White House, a thing he had scorned to do while President Hayes occupied it. Logan also and Cameron, sub-bosses, were "conciliated" as the chief had been; and all who follow the game of plunder crowed lustily over the restoration of boss rule. But suddenly all was changed. Several nominations, conspicuous among which was that of Robertson for collector of the port of New York, were sent in without previous consultation with the bosses. The effect produced was a mixture of amazement, consternation and wrath. That the president should have the temerity to nominate a collector at New York, or presume to fill any New York office without first consulting the state boss, obtaining his permission, or awaiting his recommendation, was a piece of insolent presumption meriting the severest punishment. Mr. Conkling has not, in fact, favored the white house with his presence since, but finding that President Garfield was enduring his absence as comfortably as President Hayes had done before him, the arch boss next declared his purpose to bring his revolted vassal, the president, to submission by open attack and punishment proportionable to the grave offence. He would get all his own henchmen confirmed, but would defeat those whom the president had presumed to nominate without his suggestion or permission, and would show the man that field how rebellion against sovereign authority should be checked and punished.

The plan appeared to be working admirably. After long delay the senate had begun to hold executive sessions, and nominations were being confirmed. Conkling had got his postmaster for Albany through, and looked with serene satisfaction and quiet triumph for speedy confirmation of his other legions, while he held back those nominations which had been sent in without his permission. But suddenly President Garfield met this by withdrawal of all the Conkling nominations, at the same time refusing to withdraw the representative of the wing of republicans opposed to the Conkling machine, who had been nominated for the most important office in New York! This was a thunder stroke which demolished all the calculations of the stalwart ringsters and spoilsmen. They had been too hasty in mistaking the gracious amenities of the master for the obsequious deference of the servant. The president is correcting his mistakes. It has taken time for him to discover and fully learn the spirit and purpose of those who demand the restoration of the degrading system which treats the public offices as perquisites of senators and representatives, to be parcelled out among their personal friends and hirelings. Or perhaps he thought it would be better to take a course which would unmask the system to the country by exposure of its arrogance. In either case his present attempt will be recognized as a proper stand for a correct principle. It is notice to the country that he does not intend to abdicate his office at the command of senatorial bosses, and the country will support him in that purpose. The administration must now crush bossism, or be crushed by it. Fortunately the matter has come to a clear and decisive issue, and there is no avoiding it now. Conkling has appealed on an issue in which he will be overthrown.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The San Francisco Bulletin says: "The Oregonian is disposed to challenge the future commercial supremacy of San Francisco." A mistake; the Bulletin did not read with its usual discrimination. The Oregonian said that while San Francisco was and would remain for many years, if not for all the future, the chief commercial city of the Pacific Coast, it would not much longer maintain the overwhelming importance it has hitherto possessed. For thirty years there has been no other city on the Pacific slope. No business has been done except through San Francisco. Even yet no one can come or go without passing through that city. All routes of commerce for the coast, all connections with the east across the continent and with the west across the ocean, focalize there. But in a few years more this will be a good deal changed. Very soon there will be other railways across the continent. Other lines across the ocean, and other connections with all parts of the world, will be established. San Francisco will not decline, but she will no longer monopolize all, as she has hitherto done. That is to say, her importance will not be, relatively, so great as it has been. The vast country north of her and the vast country south of her, with their towns and small cities, which hitherto have been able to do business only with San Francisco, or through San Francisco, will, within a few years, be doing no small part of their business through more direct channels, both by land and sea. San Francisco can buy nothing now that we want to sell. So soon as we can go as well as she to the original markets, she can sell us nothing that we want to buy. In this we are not "challenging the commercial supremacy of San Francisco;" for that city, though her relative importance will be gradually lost, will yet grow and develop, retaining her position as the largest and most important city on the Pacific coast. As yet she is the only city. Hitherto there has been very little business on this side of the continent which has not been transacted through San Francisco. It is this overwhelming preëminence and domination that cannot always be maintained.

The question has not yet arisen officially how far our adopted fellow-citizens are to be permitted to go in the efforts to secure the liberation of Ireland from British rule. Talk is not generally dangerous; but it is just possible that there may be too much talk of a certain sort. For instance, Mr. O'Donovan Rossa counsels that Mr. Gladstone should be put out of the way of oppressing Ireland further by means of bomb or bullet, and another impassioned orator tells his fellow leaguers assembled in public meeting that the only remedy against the oppressive acts of landlordism is "to shoot the landlords." Nor does the land league in this country confine itself to incendiary speeches against English statesmen and Irish landlords, but at a meeting held in New York recently it was resolved that military companies should be formed of volunteers for Ireland. All this would seem rather to exceed the bounds of propriety. But doubtless our Irish brethren were indulging the luxury of talking freely because they knew they were in a place where it was safe to do so. Probably in point of fact very few even of those who heard and applauded these sentiments would have any sympathy at all with cold blooded murder, whether the victim were Mr. Gladstone, who is evidently trying to help the Irish peasants, or a landlord, who is not trying to help them. Nor would they send companies of volunteers to Ireland if they could.

Florida has become a great resort for people from the northern states. It is now said that while that state has the credit of being a proper place for resort for invalids, its climate appears to have any other than a wholesome effect upon those who are hale and hearty. A number of cases are cited in which healthy persons, after a sojourn in the flowery state for a month or two, have returned to the north with their systems filled with malarial influence which develops itself almost as soon as they arrive at home.

There is little doubt that most of the democratic senators will aid President Garfield in his efforts to break down the insolence of bossism. A majority of the republican senators will also aid in the same good cause. The old senatorial ring of the Grant dynasty, or what is left of it, will rally around Conkling; but it will be defeated and extinguished. It has invited a war of aggression and extermination.

The man with a backbone is ascertained to be James A. Garfield of Ohio. Roscoe now feels that in challenging him for a wrestle he has been made a victim of misplaced confidence.

Mr. Conkling would like somebody to tell him whether he is a vassal or a boss. Clearly he doesn't know himself.

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 7, 1881.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—For the north Pacific coast region, partly cloudy weather and occasional rain. For California, fair weather.

CITY.

ST. DAVID'S CHURCH.—The Churchman says: "During Lent St. David's church, East Portland, was much improved and the wants of the growing congregation met by the addition of several new seats. The church is now completely seated. Three stained glass memorial windows are now on the way from the manufactory in Chicago, and when in place will add materially to the beauty of the interior."

VARIETY HALL.—Carpenters are now engaged in remodeling the old Elite saloon on First street, the purpose being to convert the place into a variety hall. A large stage will be built at one end of the hall and a number of seats put in. The hall will be capable of seating comfortably 350 or 400 persons. It is the purpose of the proprietor, R. Clinton, to have the new hall open by the 1st of June.

NEW UNIFORMS.—The East Portland band, Thos. Parrot, leader, have by the last steamer received their new uniform. It is grey, trimmed with scarlet and gold. The cap is very fine, with a large plume. The belt is white, trimmed with scarlet, with gold buckle. The uniform was made to order in Philadelphia. It will be publicly worn for the first time on Decoration day.

CITIZENS' MEETING.—This afternoon the representatives of the city will meet in the hall over the Louisville restaurant, for the purpose of reorganization and putting it upon a solid foundation. A full attendance is desired. The barbers' Union have, by resolution, determined to patronize no establishment that keeps its doors open after 8 o'clock in the evening.

OPEN TEMPERANCE MEETING.—The usual open temperance meeting will take place this evening at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. A number of addresses will be delivered by Chaplain Stubbs and others. Miss Annie Riggs, who delighted the audience at the last regular meeting, will sing a solo. A number of readings will be contributed.

NEW PROPELLERS.—The little tugboat Ben Holladay, which is a double propeller, is lying at the foot of Columbia street receiving new propellers, the old ones having been broken. The afterpart is hoisted out of the water by a derrick, so that the work is easily performed. She will be in readiness to resume service in a few days.

ONE OF THE OWNERS.—Dr. Simon Quinlin, who is one of the proprietors of the Big Four Minstrel Company, is also one of the principal owners of Hooley's Theater, in Chicago. The doctor is the father-in-law of Mr. James O'Neil, the actor. He is reputed to be worth half a million dollars.

IN THE TREASURY.—According to the report of Wm. Showers, county treasurer, for April, there was remaining in the treasury on the 1st of May, $31,-233 41. Of this amount $21,753 51 belongs to the school fund. The next distribution of the school fund will be on the 1st Monday in June.

DROWNED.—A note from Astoria, received last evening, states that a man engaged in fishing for the Occident Packing Co., was knocked overboard on Thursday by the boom jibing, and drowned. The name of the unfortunate fellow is not known. His body has not been recovered.

ARRESTED FOR DESERTION.—John Fussell, a seaman who belongs to the British bark Signet, deserted from that vessel a few days ago. He was arrested and yesterday had an examination before United States Commissioner Woodard, who held him to answer.

LECTURE ON ALASKA.—The Rev. S. H. Young will deliver a lecture on "Our Russian Purchase" to-morrow evening at the Presbyterian church. Mr. Young has spent nearly three years in Alaska, and is well qualified to impart the most useful information on the subject.

NEW QUARTERS.—George Wright Post No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, has rented Red Men's hall on First street between Washington and Stark and will move to the new hall as soon as arrangements can be made.

WENT BOUND PASSENGERS.—A dispatch received last evening from Kansas City, states that ex-Senator Newton Booth of California, and F. J. Mellis of this city, passed through that place bound west.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning in the cases of the bark Glenearne, Philip Johnson, libellant, and James Strang, libellant—suits for pilotage.

COUNTY COURT.—The county court, which has been in session for several days, has adjourned until Tuesday, May 10, at 2 o'clock P. M.

NOTICE.—Rev. G. H. Atkinson will preach in the Congregational church at Astoria on Sabbath, the 8th, morning and evening.

THE OLYMPIC EXHIBITION.

The entertainment by the Olympic Club at New Market last night was such a one as anybody of professional athletes might be proud. They attempted great difficulties and executed them well. The ground pyramids by Messrs. Baumeister, Muth, Davis, Noland, Ward, Sharp, J. and T. Dunbar, Berry and Harland, were splendid exhibitions of strength, grace and muscle, as were also the performances and groupings on parallel bars. The double trapeze act by Messrs. Martin and Davis was fully equal to average performances of like character in circuses. Mr. J. F. Muth, a late acquisition to the club, and a man of superb muscle gave a splendid exhibition of swinging Indian clubs. Performances on the horizontal bar and horse, and the ladder pyramids were each in their way exceptionally fine. Only one improvement can be suggested. The acts want to move faster, especially those on the bar and the horse. An acrobat should be immediately behind the one performing, and begin just as quick as the other finishes. A pleasing feature was excellent music by an orchestra of ten pieces under leadership of Prof. H. C. Kay.

The musical programme was excellent. Mr. Coursen played with customary skill and taste "Cavatina," by Raff, and "Twilight Fancy," by Molloy. Miss Anderson, who made her first appearance in public since her return from California, was warmly greeted. She rendered "The Return," by Millard, very well, and responding to an encore gave a beautiful ballad "I've brought thee an ivy leaf," in her own sweet way. Mrs. Wyatt was in good voice, and sang a neat Scotch ballad in fine style. For an encore awarded, Mrs. Wyatt gave "Jeannette's Choice." Mr. Kinross' solo "The Wolf," was marred by a man in the orchestra who put too much wind into the cornet he played.

The Olympics will repeat their exhibition this afternoon and evening. Those who like athletic sports, will be well repaid by attending.

BRIEF NOTES.

B'ware that oysters R out of season.

The picnic season has commenced in earnest.

The happy pair left town next day for their home near Oswego, where they have the best wishes of a large number of friends.

PLEASANT SURPRISE.

Last Wednesday evening was the occasion of a pleasant surprise to Miss Fannie Duckgan. A number of friends assembled at her residence, No. — Clay st., and took possession of the house for the evening. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the parlors were filled with young and old friends of Miss Duckgan. During the course of the evening Mr. J. H. Harris in a few well chosen words presented the object of the gathering, which was an elegant gold watch. [illegible] The guests were then regaled with charming music, to which a feast of good things was added. The guests took their departure at a late hour, [illegible] that it was an evening very pleasantly spent and one long to be remembered by all present.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

An event not soon to be forgotten by those present, was a party given Monday evening in celebration of the birthday of Miss May VanDusen at her residence in Astoria. At an early hour the guests began to arrive, and in a short time the spacious parlors were filled to overflowing by a merry throng of young people evidently bent on crowding as much enjoyment as possible into one evening. Special provisions were made for those who dance, and they very willingly availed themselves of the opportunity afforded. The music was excellent throughout. A piano duet by the Misses May Van Dusen and Lou Warren was specially well rendered. At 12:30 the guests were summoned to the supper table over which the fair young hostess presided with dignity and grace characteristically her own. Dancing was then resumed and followed up until "The chimes of the clock for the wee small hours warned those who [illegible] that the night was spent."

THE STRONG-HOLDEN WEDDING IN ASTORIA.

Thursday evening Mr. Wm. J. Strong, youngest son of Judge Wm. Strong of this city, was married to Miss Mary Esther Holden, eldest daughter of Mr. E. C. Holden of Astoria. Rev. J. V. Milligan of the Presbyterian church officiating. The marriage took place at 8:30 P. M. at the family residence, and from 9 to 10 a reception was held. The Astorian speaking of the wedding says: "Thus Astoria loses one of its most amiable, fairest and best young ladies, and to the newly married couple all cheerfully extend the heartfelt greeting that joy and happiness may attend them through life."

Mr. and Mrs. Strong came to Portland on yesterday's boat and leave this morning for their future home in The Dalles.

"THE COLONEL'S WIFE."

This caption serves as the title to a four-act war drama put upon the stage of Reed's Opera House at Salem, on Thursday evening last, under the auspices of the Capital Guards, the characters being sustained by amateurs of that city. The excellence of its rendition proved a pleasing surprise to every one present, and the interest in the plot never lagged for an instant. While it may seem almost unfair to discriminate, it is pardonable to make special mention of the really excellent personations by the Misses Nellie and Emma Riggs and Miss Ella Powell, who each and all won the plaudits of a well pleased audience. Capt. Frank and Charlie Kelly were also well up in their parts, while the acting of Mr. Rowan would without flattery, have done credit to a professional. A lightning bayonet drill by the tap of the drum, was finely executed by the company. The house was well filled and all went home highly pleased with the entertainment. There is some talk of the troupe visiting Albany during the ensuing week, and giving that city an exhibition of Salem talent.

NICOLL, THE TAILOR.

His Traveling Agent at the Esmond.

Everyone has heard of Nicoll, the famous tailor, who has a chain of establishments from New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City to San Francisco. ADJOURNED MEETING.

Last evening an adjourned meeting of the executive committee, appointed last week to make arrangements for celebrating the coming Fourth, was held in the county court room at 8 o'clock.

Every member of the committee were present.

Mayor Thompson, chairman of the committee, called the meeting to order.

P. J. Martin, G. W. Lathy and Thomas A. Jordan were, on motion, added to the executive committee.

A communication was read from Gov. W. W. Thayer, declining to act on the executive committee.

On motion the resignation was accepted and the communication placed on file.

The committee on music reported that they had engaged the following bands: Dallas, Corvallis, Lafayette, Aurora and East Portland.

Judge Mathews, Frank Payan and Wm. Underhill were present as representatives of the fire department of East Portland, and, on motion, their names were added to the executive committee.

The citizens of East Portland were invited to hold a meeting and select additional persons to represent them in the executive committee, as might be desirable.

The committee extended an invitation to all military and civic societies and fire departments of the city and country to participate in the celebration exercises, and that they report their acceptance of the same to Mr. W. S. Newbury, chairman of the committee on invitations, at as early a day as possible.

The selection of the reader of the declaration of independence will be left to the committee on orator.

The committee on amusements reported that they had made an estimate of the necessary expenses.

The finance committee was instructed to secure $2,200 if possible and that a committee of five be appointed to report a programme of exercises at the next meeting of committee. The following persons were appointed to constitute the committee: H. A. Thompson, P. D. W. Harding, Frank Payan, M. Zetner and J. W. Lathy.

The following persons were added to the finance committee: G. Gerdes, Andrew Roberts and Charles Hegele.

Committee then adjourned to meet next Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the county court room.

In CLOCKS we have a full assortment.

SPECTACLES, EYEGLASSES, and all articles connected with the optical line, our stock is complete. We have the only OPTIMETER (eye-measurer) on the coast, and are enabled to test the strength or weakness of EACH EYE SEPARATELY, thereby enabling persons to obtain proper glasses who have heretofore found it difficult to be fitted.

In addition to above articles we have a complete and well selected stock of ROLLED GOLD JEWELRY. All dealers and merchants handling goods in our line will find it to their advantage to call on us when coming to the city, or send their orders, as we are enabled to supply them at the same rates, often lower than they can buy of jobbers and middlemen in the east and San Francisco. GOODS SENT ON SELECTION to parties known to us (charges to be paid by purchaser both ways) with privilege to return within a reasonable length of time. Goods sent per W. F. & Co., C. O. D., with the privilege to examine at express office, to any one, when charges both ways are deposited in W. F. & Co's office.

Our watch repairing department is in the hands of the most skillful workmen. Fine watch repairing particularly solicited. Ship chronometers rated by transit observations.

Old gold and Jewelry taken in trade and bought outright for cash.

When cold blasts blow, or when summer heat and dust parch our throats, "Hub Punch" is equally acceptable. With hot water it far excels ordinary toddies, and it is unequaled with fine ice, lemonade, milk, etc. It makes a splendid "night cap" taken upon going to bed. Keep it in readiness. Sold by all Grocers, Wine Merchants and Druggists. Trade supplied by Richards & Harrison, Agent for Pacific Coast, San Francisco.

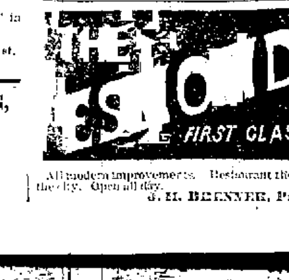

A CARD.

A CARD.

PORTLAND, May 6, 1881.

A few days ago, under orders from the O. R. & N. Co., I superintended the transportation of their engines Nos. 8 and 10 from this city to The Dalles, to be run on the O. R. & N. R. R. from that point to Wallula Junction. After the engines were safely landed at The Dalles I was engaged to run No. 10 for the O. R. & N. Co. After serving two weeks under orders of Master Mechanic Curtis I found that I could not serve under a man whom I considered to be grossly incompetent, both in his treatment of men and knowledge of work. I got a "lay off" from the train master, and came to Portland, where I learned that this man Curtis had informed the main officers here that I had been drinking, thus at once attempting by an untruth to stain a character for sobriety and faithfulness which I have maintained for six years on the first railroads in the United States. His action in this matter was certainly unworthy a man towards a brother engineer and stamps him as a man entirely unfit for his position.

LITT, Third and Alder streets, Portland, Oregon.

NOTE.

The above statement is without doubt the most legitimate advertisement ever inserted in any newspaper. All that is asked is a trial, it matters not what distance. Prices are ranging from $15 to $35 in French Cashmere or All-Wool fabrics.

Black Dolmans from $10 to $35. Styles are generally left to Mrs. Litt, the admitted Leading Dressmaker. Ladies who have their own Dress Goods can have Dresses made up at reasonable prices.

Fringes, Gimps and All-Wool Dress Goods on hand at same prices as the leading dry goods stores.

Third & Alder. H. B. LITT. Third & Alder.

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT.

The growth of the Ladies' Ready-Made Suit Department for the past two years has been remarkable, and may justly be attributed to the most efficient and thorough manner in which I have executed all orders entrusted to me. A Lady can send a postal card from any distant place, state her size, and color of goods, and within one day can have

An All-Wool Black or Colored Dress for from $15 to $30.

And when not acquainted with me, has the privilege of examining the Dress ordered. No advance of money is required, as is the custom with New York houses, which is such a great risk, as many advances have been regretted by Ladies, who waited for two months for a Dress and then were displeased. Ladies, reflect and give me an order.

GREAT CITIES OF THE FUTURE.

[illegible] writes to the New York Herald as follows concerning the future of American cities:

In reading your correspondent's very interesting interview with Horatio Seymour and your pertinent editorial in a recent issue, I saw cause to reflect that both the Herald and Mr. Seymour are befuddling fancies on the past without a due respect for the present and a due regard for the future. The wealth and greatness of New York city will not decrease; but that she will much longer retain her commercial or numerical supremacy is open to question. In your editorial you mention Hampton Roads and Charleston. New York city will never find a rival on the Atlantic seaboard. Had Philadelphians nerve and brains instead of phlegm, once there was a time when that sleepy village might have divided commercial honors with this city, but New York has nothing to fear from a town incapable of supporting a newspaper. This city will probably always remain the continent's banking house, but trade must follow demand, and demand has moved out west. Within fifty years, figuring upon the present ratio of increase and all other that its surroundings, opportunities for development and support are incomparably greater than this city. Chicago will outrank New York in both population and trade. This need be no unpalatable truth. In preference to an unworthy local pride a citizen of the United States should be a big minded devotee of the republic and not a petty clansman. These clannish and selfish instincts ultimately reduce the germ of a great city to the rank of a wood and water station, like the village on the Delaware. Chicago and to an extent St. Louis has for some time been doing her own importing without much reference to seaboard towns. When a proper ship canal system connects the lakes with the ocean her opportunities may readily be surmised. As a distributing point, without further reference to the lakes, her facilities are unequalled. By canal and river she connects with the gulf of Mexico and by railway facilities surpassing any city in the world — her roads enter her on dry land, crossing no bays or rivers, and on a great level floor, laid down by nature, find unlimited yard room at the very doors of commerce—by these facilities she can and does reach out her hand and grasp the dollar of the people in every direction. She has no rival. One was attempted (Omaha), but it died a suckling. St. Louis has one, Kansas City. As Cincinnati robbed Pittsburg so St. Louis robbed Cincinnati, and in turn is now being plundered of its trade by Kansas City. The rival, if so harsh a name should be used, of New York is Chicago. Heretofore the latter has been looked upon as the continent's great bread, meat and lumber depot. Within two decades, and possibly within one, she will have to surrender her prestige in those three matters. Mr. Seymour speaks lightly of the Mississippi as a highway for grain. He is mistaken. Compare the receipts of grain at St. Louis and Chicago for the past four years. You will be astonished to see how rapidly St. Louis is taking away Chicago's grain trade. Railroads are poor grain carriers. Kansas City had and probably still has a grain barge line on the Missouri, and ultimately the wheat fields of Kansas will empty themselves down that river. Barge lines will yet convey Minnesota's export flour and grain to the gulf. The corn fields of northern Illinois and Iowa and the wheat lands of Illinois, Missouri, northern Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota, all belong to the Mississippi river. So, too, will those of Oklahoma, when, within the coming five years, Oklahoma pours a wealth of grain into the country's lap in place of a wealth of Indian jobs into the department of the interior. Oklahoma grain will go down the Arkansas river, and somewhere near where Fort Smith now stands will be a great city. Chicago is already surrendering her grain trade to the gulf. The city is also fast dividing the great stock yards and packing houses, and anyone who has been there during the summer time, and is not color blind in the nose, is well aware that either the city or the packing houses will have to take a trip into the country during the warm weather. It will be but a short time until the town of Lake is incorporated in Chicago and then Chicago's packing business goes west. Kansas City is making a start for it, and is in every respect admirably adapted for such a purpose, its residents being able to live in comfort upon the bluffs while they manufacture provisions and stinks down on the Kaw. As to lumber—ten years ago "logging" was done by oxteams and waterways, now they "log" with flat cars and railroads, but Chicago lumber trade must yearly decrease as the Michigan prairies exhaust and the west supplies itself by rail and river from Wisconsin and Minnesota. Chicago recognizes the fact that her lumber, grain and meat business is breaking up and is going to storekeeping and manufacturing. She claims to and will ultimately be the largest general supply depot and one of the most extensive manufacturing centres in the United States. As the west grows so grows Chicago. They are twins, and with legitimate pride, though somewhat paradoxical, we may assert that New York city gave birth to at least one of them, and Chicago to-day more closely resembles its energetic parent and careful nurse and tutor than it does any other city in the world. New York city, as I before suggested, will undoubtedly always remain the continent's banking house, but trade and population go west. For why? One acre of western land will feed more people than three acres of eastern land.

Carlyle on De Quincey.

[From Carlyle's "Reminiscences."]

I recollect, too, how in Edinburg a year or two after, poor De Quincey, whom I wished to know, was reported to tremble at the thought of such a thing; and did fly pale as ashes, poor little soul, the first time we actually met. He was a pretty little creature, full of wire-drawn ingenuities, bankrupt enthusiasms, bankrupt pride, with the finest silver-toned low voice, and most elaborate gently-winding courtesies and ingenuities in conversation. "What wouldn't one give to have him in a box and take him out to talk!" That was her criticism of him, and it was right good. A bright, ready, and melodious talker, but in the end an inconclusive and long-winded. (One of the smallest man figures I ever saw; shaped like a pair of tongs, and hardly above five feet in all. When he sate, you would have taken him, by candlelight, for the beautifullest little child; blue-eyed, sparkling face, had there not been a something, too, which said "Eccovi—this child has been in hell." After leaving Edinburg I never saw him, hardly ever heard of him. His fate, owing to opium, etc., was hard and sore, poor fine-strung weak creature, launched so into the literary career of ambition and mother of dead dogs.

Cheap Publications.

Harper's "Easy Chair" deplores the fact of the fifteen-cent publication of high-priced foreign literature. For the American author it says:

It is now plain that, in the absence of any international understanding, literature in this country will consist largely of cheap English reprints. The tendency will constantly be to greater cheapness and flimsiness of form, and so far as unwise laws and unjust conduct can avail to suppress it American literary expression will be suppressed. American authors as a class are not so reprobate that they deserve to be summarily destroyed. They may be an inconsiderable body of insignificant performance. But innumerable and important as the works which they have not written may be, their offenses are certainly not so much more heinous than those of their fellow citizens that they should be practically outlawed. They ask only fair play. They ask only that the laws of their country may not favor the foreigner more than they favor the citizen.

"A Fool's Errand."

Judge Tourgee is reported by the Cleveland Leader as saying that his "Fool's Errand" has reached a sale of 260,000 or 270,000 volumes. "I came to write the 'Fool's Errand' in this way," he added: "One Sunday morning in the summer of 1877 I arose early, saying to my wife, 'I am going to write a book by the name of "A Fool's Errand," by one of the fools.' I went into my library and went to work, and during that day I wrote three chapters of the book. I laid it away and did not take it up again until June, 1879, when the printing began. One chapter I wrote twenty times, and tore it down out of type three times. Each time I threw my manuscript into the fire and entirely rewrote the chapter. I never could patch up."

The Boston Watchman (Baptist) objects to giving the Rev. Phillips Brooks a chair in Harvard College on account of his peculiar religious views. NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Freights via Cape Horn do not [illegible] for the time being there is delay in deliveries of dead weight and ships, and both drag somewhat. Rates are irregular, and although no lower, agents do not allow any lot to pass them.

Markets are generally quiet. Wheat held higher on good export demand, caused by break in ocean freights and scarcity.

Barley—Nominal.
Pork—Easier.
Lard—Lower.
Coffee—Unchanged.
Refined Sugars—Steady demand, firm.
Hides—Dull, prices firm.
Turpentine—Quiet, half higher.
Petroleum—Better demand, firm.

The New York Grain Market.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Grain is higher on light receipts and heavy export demand, with lower freight rates than known since 1865 and fright of shorts, who are covering their shorts.

The Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, May 6.—The wool market has been dull for some days past and the business of the week was the smallest since the first of January, only 1,230,000 pounds of all grades and qualities being disposed of. The boom in San Francisco, Texas and other markets found no sympathy here. Manufacturers were not disposed to operate to any extent, even at present prices. With large stocks of both foreign and domestic on hand, and with the largest clip ever produced in this country just coming on, it is hard to convince manufacturers that a higher range of prices is likely to prevail, especially as trade with them has been very unsatisfactory for some time past. Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces sold slowly at 40@41c for X and XX, 43c for XXX; Michigan and Wisconsin X fleeces, 36@38c; New Hampshire and New York X fleeces, 35@36c; medium and No. 1 fleeces, 44@48c, according to quality. Delaine fleeces have been selling in small lots at 42@44c for good lots fine Kentucky. Other unwashed combings, 29@32½c, according to quality. California wool is neglected; sales of fall principally at 14@25c. There is a large stock of fall on hand. Pulled wools have been in better demand, and range 35@39c for common and very choice supers; 25@40 for X. Foreign wools have been quiet; sales at 36@42½ for Australian; 35@44c for good and choice Montevideo; small lots Cape at previous prices.

The Tonnage Situation at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—The week past till yesterday was uneventful, two vessels coming to hand under charter and one disengaged ship remaining free. Yesterday a long expected fleet put in an appearance and, including a small trader from Tahiti, numbered eleven vessels of 14,735 tons register. This adds four vessels to the wheat fleet, five to the disengaged and, with the above mentioned trader, two to the miscellaneous freight list. It is not easy to determine the effect on the freight market, but the opinion is quite general that there will be a drop from the extreme rates paid when the market was almost bare of vessels; but as disengaged vessels are held in strong hands and will not be ready for business for some time, there are reasonable grounds for believing that the market will be but slightly affected. Until a spot engagement is reported it is useless to attempt to give quotations. The latest charters are: Br ship Tam O'Shanter, 1608 tons, wheat to Cork, U. K., 70s, prior to arrival; Br st. Glencairn, 1619 tons, wheat to Cork, U. K., £2 15s, prior to arrival; Br sh Chinsura, 1266 tons, wheat to Liverpool direct, £2 17s 6d, Cork, U. K., £3, prior to arrival; Br bk Afton, 815 tons, wheat to Cork, U. K., 73s, prior to arrival; Br sh Eliza McNeil, 1581 tons, merchandise to New York in dispatch line.

The English Grain Market.

LIVERPOOL, May 6.—A leading grain circular says: Grain continues dull and dragging, and business is limited at a decline of 6d to 1s. A large number of cargoes are arriving daily, but no change is likely to destination, sellers accepting a reduction on spot. Since Tuesday wheat has been fairly steady. Business was quite of retail character. Corn quiet, shade easier. At to-day's market there was average attendance. Wheat was in moderate consumptive demand at unchanged rates, except for lower grades [illegible] red winter which occasionally [illegible]

Flour—Quiet, unchanged.

Corn—Inquiry being inactive and supply liberal; receded half penny.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, May 6.—Breadstuffs quiet and steady, wheat 9s 6d per cental for red winter. Receipts wheat past 3 days, 222,000 centals, including 157,000 American.

The Chicago Wheat Market.

CHICAGO, May 6.—Wheat—Firm and higher, 104 cash, 100 May, 107½ June, 104½ bid July.

Gold and Stock Reports.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.

Wheat—The demand is better, sellers are raising their pretensions. Among sales were the following: 750 tons off grades, shipping, $1 30, choice milling sold at $1 42½. We quote the market as before.

Butter—Stocks are increasing. Prices are not materially changed, yet a slight tendency in buyers' favor is noted. Quote choice fresh, roll 21@23c; choice, packed 24@25c.

Eggs—The market is firm at full prices; 19@20c. Light receipts from Omaha.

Apples—Offerings, though not large, exceed present requirements. Jobbing from 75c to $2 50, according to quality.

Cherries—Black, 10@20c; white, 8@12½c.

Tahiti oranges, Mexican lemons and Sicily limes unchanged.

Onions—Very little demand. Sale of new at $2; old quoted at $3 to 1 50.

Potatoes—The market is weak and dull. Receipts ex Oregon, some sold at 70c. Quote Garnet Chili, 70@75c.

Rice—China mixed, market weak and prices favor buyers. Quote at $4 05@6.

Oats—Prices gradually weaken here owing to Liverpool advices.

Barley—Feed, market is firm at full prices, 85@91c.

CHARTERS.

Am ship Tam O'Shanter, 1623 tons, 70s prior to arrival. Br ship Glencairn, 1619 tons, 55s, prior to arrival. Br ship Chinsura, 1336 tons, 60s, prior to arrival. Br bark Afton, 886 tons, 70s, prior to arrival. All wheat, Cork, U. K.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 5.

Wheat—Fair demand and prices have advanced, $1 22@1 26.
Flour—Steady.
Barley—Dull and nominal.
Wool—Dull.

Regard for the Well Being of Others.

[From the New York Evening Telegram.]

Altruism, which may be briefly defined as regard for the well being of others, has not yet become universal. A woman having charge of a young child suffering with the smallpox has just travelled hence to Boston, spreading contagion at the two termini, and in the cars. Another woman, a cigar dealer in Carmine street, is charged with having kept open her store while she was ill with the same dreadful disease, and having infected with it a man and a woman, who will probably die. These are only salient instances of a lack of that great principle of altruism which is to regenerate society, if society is ever to be regenerated. But, in fact, the millennium is so very far off that only poets are justified in setting forth pictures of it as having a potential existence. When the struggle for existence is not quite so sharp as it is at present, when rich men's fortunes are not spoiled by the very act of receiving it, when people who are anxious to be charitable, exercise the necessary wisdom and discrimination, when rivals cease to be anxious to benefit only at the expense of one another, then perhaps the first [illegible]
